We're Looking for Makers!

Do you want to share your creative passions with our visitors? We are looking for fiber artists, 3-D printers, painters, woodworkers, and anyone else who can bring all or part of their making process to the Discovery Center.

In our creation station, visiting makers are able to work on their art, craft, or hobby in view of inspireU visitors during regular operating hours. Children and adults alike will be able to interact with the visiting artists, ask questions, and enjoy watching them create. While you're here, get to know two of our recent makers!

Meet Chelsea Teater of CAT Designs Jewelry & More! Our visitors got to learn all about jewelry making and even had to chance to make a bracelet of their own!

Meet Samantha Fidler-Newby, a multi-talent local artist and published author! She recently showcased her fantastic cross-stitching skills in our Maker Space!

Youie's Development Tip

Sometimes, the best way to spark a child's creativity is by letting them watch others create! Whether it's seeing an artist paint, a musician perform, or a baker decorating a cake, observing the process can ignite new ideas. It also shows them that creativity isn't just about the final product, it's about experimenting, problem-solving, and discovering. Encourage your child to watch, ask questions, and then dive into creating something of their own!
